Designs of Briquettes for Hearths, Hobs, Arches (flat and circular) and various moulded	No. 131	32

CLAYGATE BRICKFIELDS, LTD.

INTRODUCTION.

The publication of the first Catalogue of Old English Fireplaces in April, 1924, met with such success that in response to the heavy demand, the 1927 Catalogue is now published. The numbering of the designs adopted is a continuation of the first (1924) Catalogue. The designs in the present Catalogue are all new, except several of the old designs, which are again issued, as they appear to be great favourites. The variations in design offer intending purchasers a wide field of selection.

The briquettes and tiles can be supplied in all colours, ranging from dark red through mottled, brown, purple, buff, yellow, grey to lilac and combined they form a delightful picture for the artist.

All are hand made sandfaced. The designs are to half-inch scale, and can be readily adapted to any requirements.

Estimates for architects' own designs have been a successful feature in the past and are sent by return of post.

The briquettes are most carefully packed in cases with sawdust and shavings for long distances by rail or sea. A small extra charge is made for cases and packing; cases are returnable within 30 days; but no credit is given after this period, nor for cases received in an incomplete or damaged condition.

A large stock of all classes of briquettes and tiles is always kept and orders can be executed immediately.

Firebacks and bottoms are supplied in 14 in., 16 in., 18 in.; larger sizes can be sent at extra cost.

Frames for overmantels, cupboards, etc., can be supplied in any size to order in oak, elm, beech, or other woods.

Sundials constructed of various shaped briquettes give an old-world appearance and form a pleasing picture in the garden. Rough briquettes are supplied for paths and other rustic work.

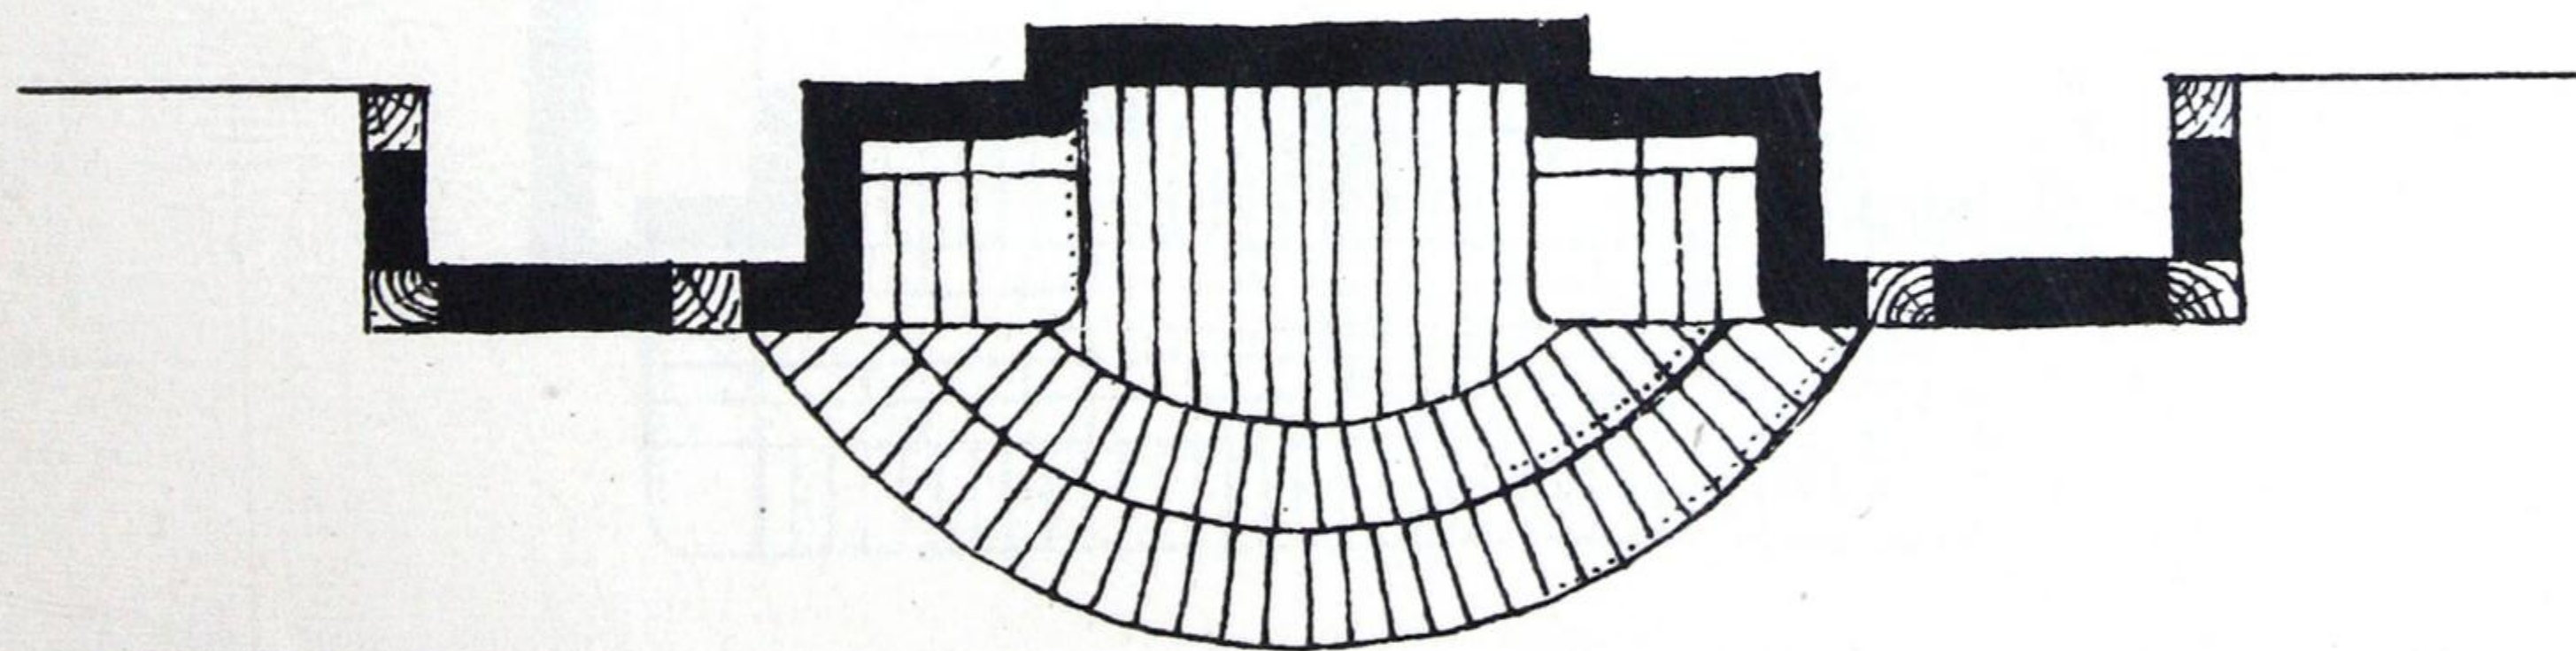

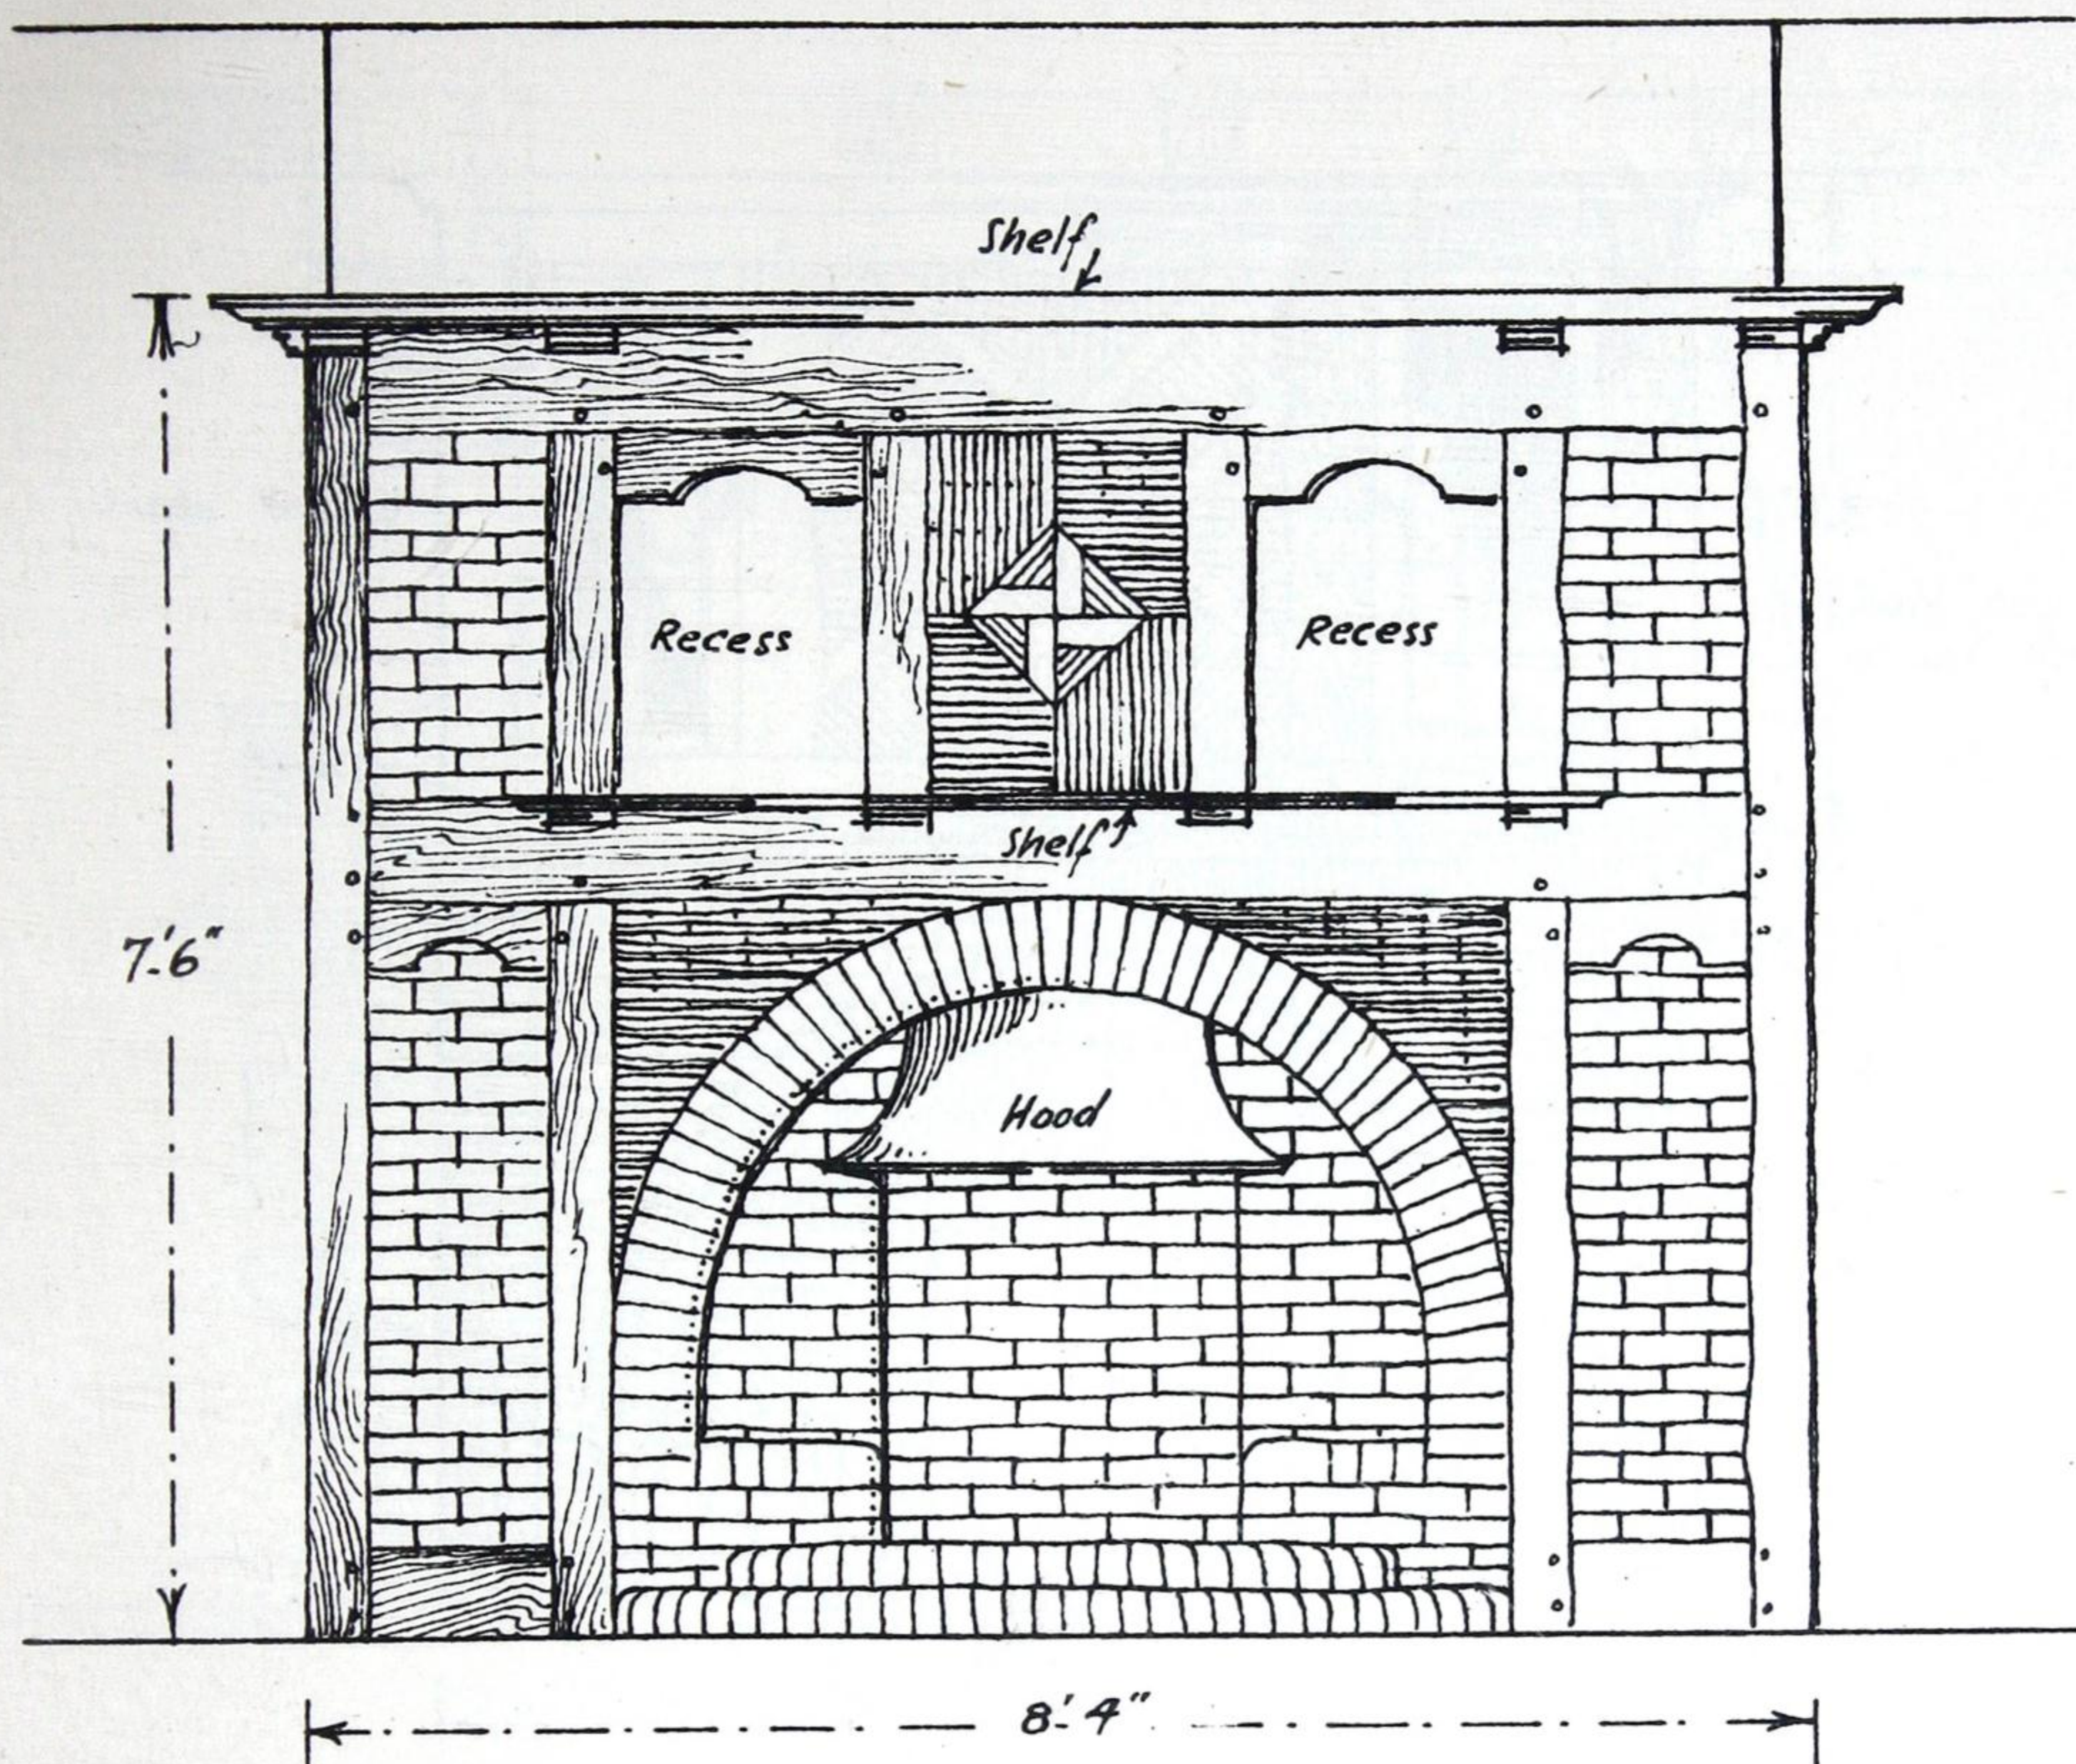

Several of the designs, including that shown on the cover, have been erected in the Showroom at Claygate, and can be seen during business hours.

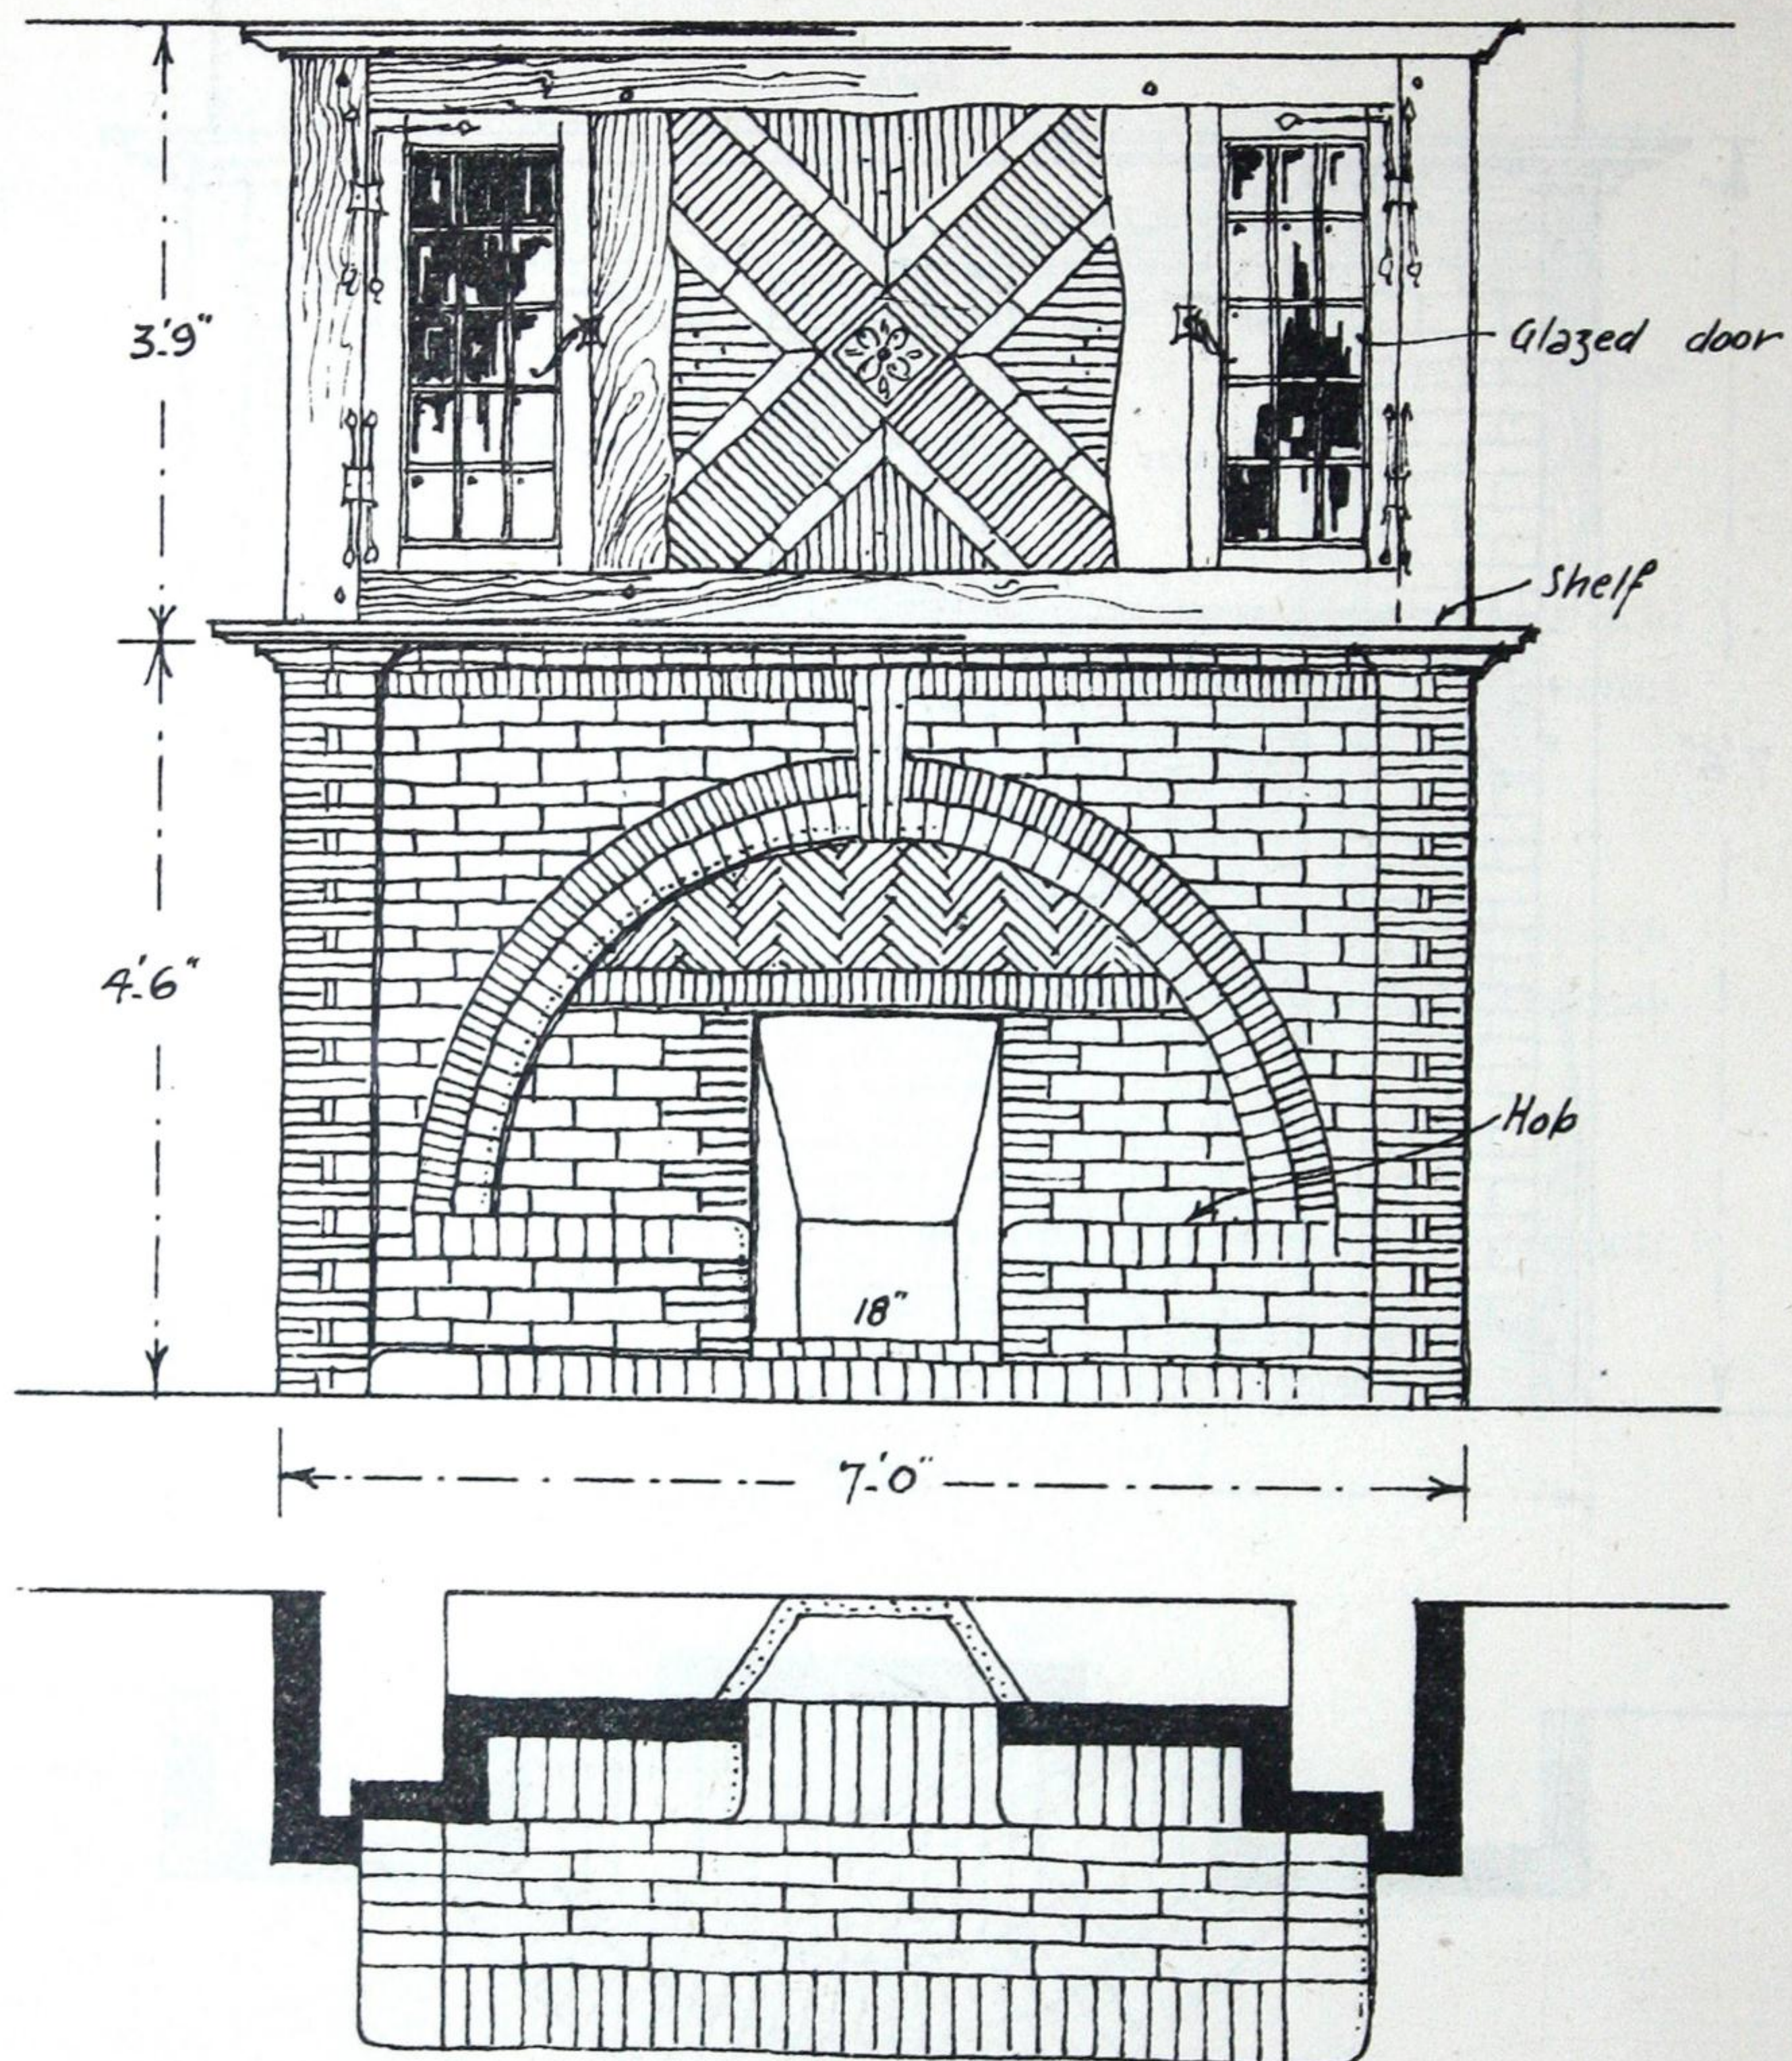

Personal inspection is urgently invited, so that customers can obtain a correct idea of the blend of colours and accuracy of design.

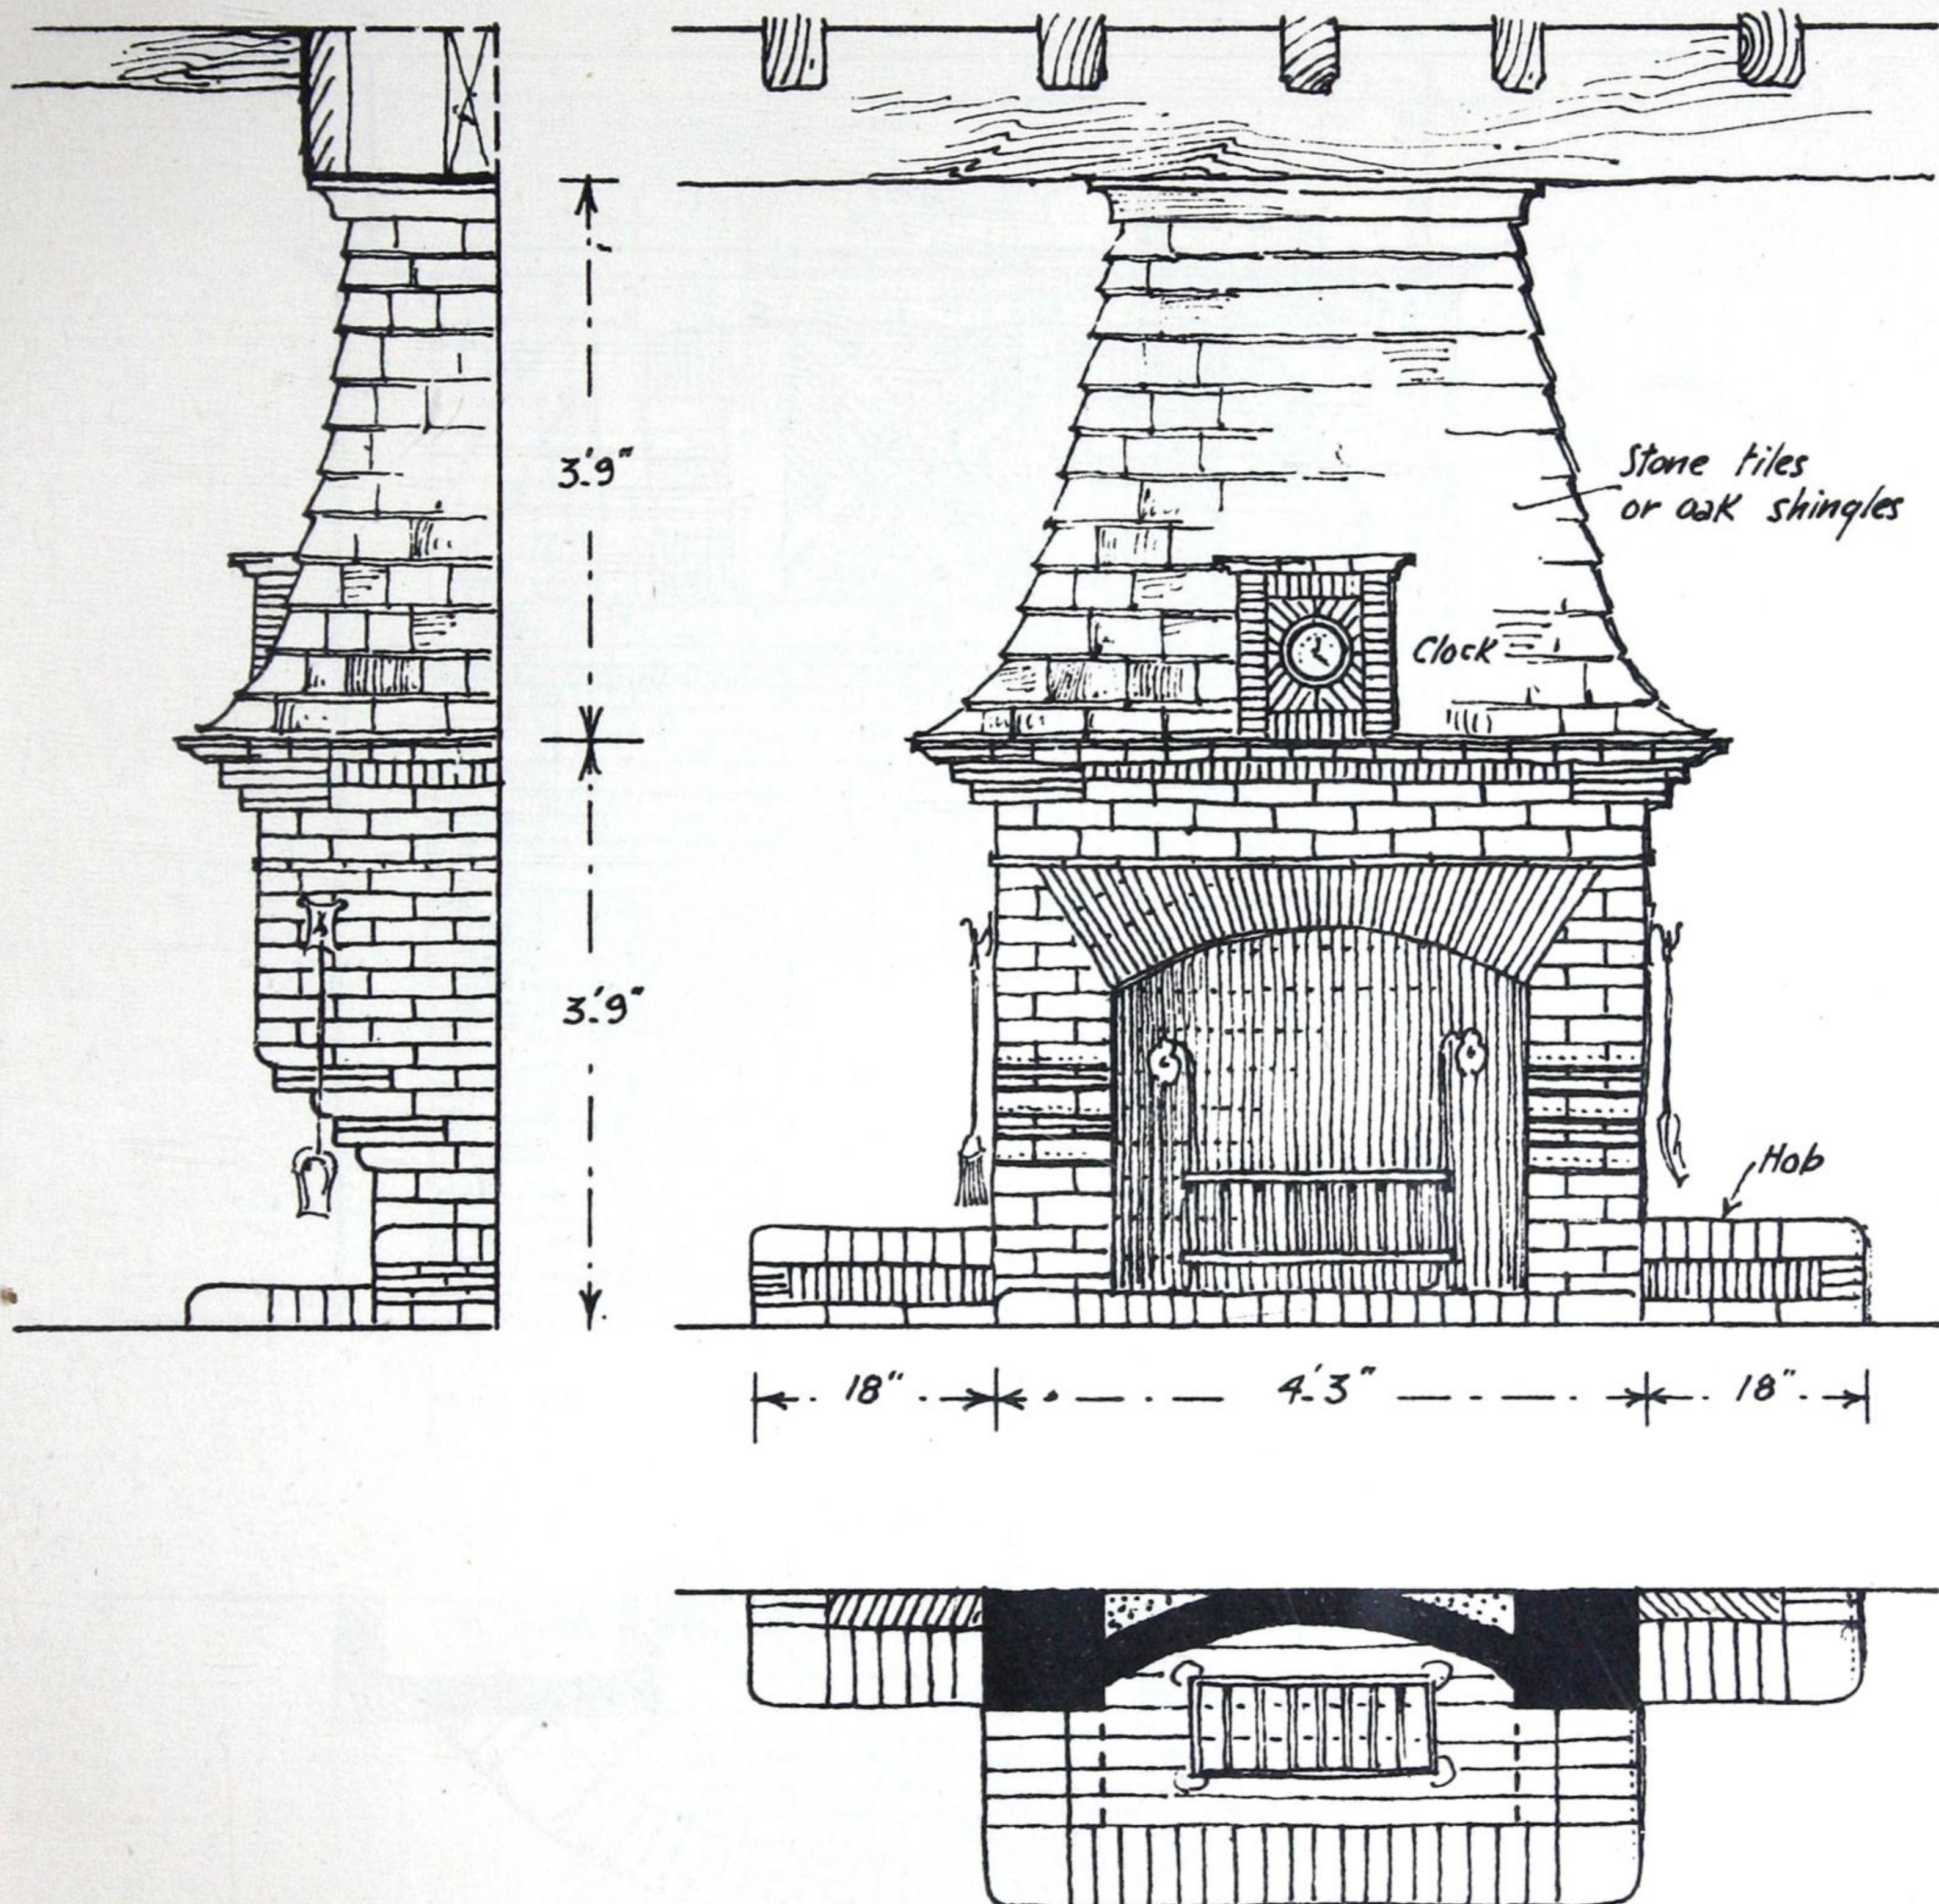

Prices and Estimates on application.
